The Journal of Special Education Technology (JSET) is an open submission journal that publishes three non-topical issues and one topical issue a year. Topics appropriate for the journal include, but are not limited to:

- Discussion of issues and trends in the use of technology in the field of special education.
- Reports of experimental or applied research that deals with the use of technology or assistive devices for people with disabilities.
- Analysis of policy developments at the state and federal levels that impact the use of technology for people with disabilities.
- Description of program models that incorporate the use of technology in the education of people with disabilities, the transition of people with disabilities, the leisure time of people with disabilities, etc.
- Description of teacher education programs that incorporate the use of technology in the education of future special educators and/or others whose focus is the provision of services to people with disabilities.
- Reviews of the literature that focus on technology in special education.
- All manuscripts are judged according to a blind review process by three members of the editorial board, with the final decision for publication made by the editor. The reviewers will be selected on the basis of their expertise in the area addressed or the methodology used. The review process normally will take 8 to 12 weeks. The principal author only will be notified concerning publication of the article.
